

Portraits

Last Updated Saturday, 03 September 2011 13:01

When it comes to portraits I find the use of natural light and a location of your choice works well. Children and babies in particular are happier in their own environment and allowing them to do their own thing provides the opportunity to capture natural and candid expressions. Taking this approach ensures that we can work together in a relaxed and informal way to capture timeless images that you will treasure for years to come.

I also offer maternity shoots at home or in the studio. Pregnancy is a time of such awe and wonder it can be wonderful to capture the most amazing physical change you will ever experience in a range of images.